Hello. My name is Dr. Richard Horowitz, and I am the co-host of the free Online Healing from Lyme Disease Summit, which airs June 4th to the 10th, 2024.

During our summit, you will learn about the safety and efficacy of Dapsone combination therapy and the importance of treating overlapping MSIDS variables and getting patients better.

I would like to share with you a story that you will hear about during the summit, which highlights the power of dapsone combination therapy and pulsed high dapsone combination therapy for the treatment of chronic Lyme disease and associated Bartonella.

Nikki's Lyme Disease History and Symptoms

This young woman you are about to meet was sick since about 2017 with Lyme disease, but babesia and Bartonella complaining of severe fatigue and severe neurological issues including brain fog and a movement disorder.

Nikki needed to take two and a half years off from college because she was so ill and before seeing me, did many different antibiotics for about a year without significant benefit.

As you will learn about during her story, her MSIDS factors that were keeping her ill. Apart from this rabies, Borrelia, babesia and Bartonella were Pots mold and severe adrenal dysfunction.

Nikki not only tolerated the protocol extremely well, but each 14 day high dose dapsone pulse led to significant improvements. When she went longer and longer in remission without symptoms.

She is now 95% better back in school. Let's hear Nikki's story and the power of pulsed dapsone combination therapy for chronic Lyme and Bartonella. I wanted to start off by saying that the dapsone treatment has been a complete game changer for me.

I got sick in 2017 and was lucky enough to get diagnosed in August of 2018. I was diagnosed with lyme the babesia Bartonella.

Treatment Journey and Dapsone Recovery

My symptoms included a lot of neurological manifestations. I extreme fatigue, joint pain, neuropathy, cognitive difficulties, just to name a handful. I barely made it through my senior year of high school, and then took two and a half years off from college.

I'm also a triplet, so it was extremely hard for me to compare myself to two other people, who were healthy and to see where I was in comparison to them trying to see in Dr. Horowitz.

I worked with a different Lyme doctor. I did I. V. antibiotics for a little over a year, as well as a cocktail of oral antibiotics, and I sold him for around eight months.

when I first met with Dr. Horowitz, it was concluded that I also had mild pots. More toxicity. severe adrenal dysfunction. I met with him in May of 2022, and I told him that, it was my dream to be able to go back to school in August, and we made that happen.

I have done a few rounds of dapsone and I have tolerated the drug extremely well. I was definitely worried about the side effects, but I had no, you know, issues whatsoever.

Previously, getting the IV treatments was, very limiting in terms of what I was able to do. I did years of oral antibiotics, and that was also an I experienced burnout from, from this multiple times.

You know, it's really hard on you mentally and emotionally to be taking pills every day for, years at a time. but once I started a dapsone I got so much better, so much quicker.

it's been great that the, impulses are so short. because, you know, that really helps with the mental health and the burnout. you know, taking all these pills.

and when people ask how the treatment is, I don't lie. It is hard. And it is intense. But I chose my hard, and I chose that my hard would be the treatment.

And not like suffering with my Lyme disease.

Summit Takeaways and Closing Invitation

today, I'm about 95 to 98% better. I just finished a quad. just did quad dapsone just finished that, about a month ago, and I'm feeling great. You know, I've moved out living with my parents.
