Introduction to the Lyme Disease Summit

Hello. My name is Dr. Richard Horowitz, and I'm co-host of the free online Healing from Lyme Disease Summit, sponsored by DrTalks June 4th to the 10th, 2024.

During our summit, you're going to gather the tools that you need to get your life back. If you suffer from chronic tick borne illnesses. In this next interview, you'll meet Sharon, a woman who is sick most of her life.

Before seeing me, she was diagnosed with early Alzheimer's disease. Yet, as you'll see, she had Lyme and associated co-infections that were keeping her ill, along with multiple factors including immune deficiency, leaky gut, and food allergies.

Mold toxicity with heavy metal toxins, pots, and low adrenal function. All of these issues needed to be fixed before she was fully able to regain her health.

Sharon's Long Search for a Diagnosis

She had all the major Lyme disease symptoms that most people suffer with. Except in her case, she was not in a wheelchair as many have been, but her severe fatigue and severe brain fog was ruining her life.

Sharon story is one you'll likely relate to, as it is a story of hope and illustrates the power of dapsone combination therapy while treating absence factors finally got her in remission.

During the last two years, we still need to work on heavy metals and mold. But every month she's getting better and better. And as you will see, the diagnosis of early Alzheimer's was just wrong.

Here is Sharon's story. I am really thrilled to talk to you today because I feel, so much better than I have for most of my adult life. I first, started asking doctors about my symptoms in 1995.

I was 35 years old, and, Lyme disease didn't show up on any of my blood tests. And I was told that I was working too hard. But of course, I had three children, and I was working too hard.

And then I was pre-menopausal. And then I was menopausal. So there was always a reason why I felt incredibly fatigued and, severe. well, in the severe brain fog.

Treatments, Symptoms, and Misdiagnosis

I eventually, in 2014, went to a neurologist who sent my bloodwork to Stony Brook, and they diagnosed me as having Lyme and, eventually Bartonella and, so, a babesia but at the same time, I was actually also going to a clinic in New York that was treating people with early onset Alzheimer's, because that was my diagnosis at that time.

with the neurologist, I did some antibiotic treatments. I was on an IVIg treatment, and I did that for about 2 or 3 years. with the same kind of, results as other people said, you know, feeling better for a while and then getting really sick again.

I had all of the symptoms that everyone else has talked about, except I didn't have to be in a wheelchair. But I had like, you got food allergies, mold, heavy metals, pots, immune deficiency, low adrenals, anxiety.

I had tinnitus, joint pain which included double frozen shoulders. But the worst really was the brain fog and disorientation. And at some points at the very end, not being able to, you know, having trouble finding my way home and the severe fatigue.

So I was thrilled when Dr. Horowitz started seeing patients again. I went straight there and he did the same thing with me. We were we talked to her for two, six hours and he explained the protocol.

And, I went on the double doubles. and by the time I finished, I would say I was about 85 to 90% normal. everything has been been incredible. I've been in remission for two years.

I still am working with Dr. Horowitz.

Dapsone Combination Therapy and Recovery

And we after the protocol, we worked on heavy metals detox and mold detox. there's still a few symptoms that I have, which include, tinnitus and tremors and still little brain fog.

And so, I spoke with him this week, actually, and we're going to do, adopt some pulse to see if I can get to 100% better, which is what my goal is. And I'm not giving up until I get there.

I will say the same for me. And the last month was quite bad. the last two weeks I was really on my back the entire time. And if I tried to walk up and down and the stairs, I had to, you know, stop every 2 or 3 steps, and and catch my breath.

The last week, my, my lips turned blue, and everyone who knew me thought that I was out of my mind. And I did glutathione. and I did the red light sauna every day.

And that definitely helped with my symptoms. it took me about 3 to 6 months to really start feeling better. But what I noticed was that, every month I felt better and better, and.

And by six months, I thought I was better. And then at 12 months, I was like, oh, my God, I feel amazing. and it's just been an incredible experience.

of, of rejuvenation and enjoying health. And I think it's a miracle. And I'm so grateful to Dr. Horowitz. Thank you so much.
