Routine Checkup Turns Serious

In September of 2022, I went for a routine checkup, females to do and what you know was supposed to be a routine in and out appointment turned into four hours later walking out with a pretty serious diagnosis of a chronic disease and I left there just very dumbfounded because all the questions I was asking were answered with, we have this, this and this.

And this is what we do. Here's your appointments. This is how it's going to happen. It was a very assembly line approach. Not like you were an individual.

More like a group of people they'd seen a hundred times before you that day.

Feeling Dismissed by Conventional Care

They were going give you the same exact recipe to fix you. There were no more steps that they were going to take to figure out why this happened in the first place.

And I think that's what bothered me the most was they're like, oh, we see this every day. But I was 47 years old and I'm like you know what, I don't see that every and a lot of people my age don t see it every.

This is something I need to sleep on before I take it the next step and just do exactly what you say. I just had something in my gut was telling me I should question this and research this.

And, you know, then lo and behold, I went home, kind of in a trance, for lack of a better word that I didn't feel like I had options.

Choosing Deeper Healing

I felt like whatever they were giving me was an open and shut case, and I really didn' have options, so that was even more concerning because I thought, well, surely I'm not the first person in these shoes that feels like there should be more to the type of care that they we're going to offer.

Then I made the call to Deeper Healing. My dad happened to have been a patient here for his heart disease and he was like, if no one else can help us, I know they can put us on the right track and they're gonna help you.

That was it. It was game on. We were going to attack this just like my life depended on it, which it did. I haven't looked back. Deeper healing is doing exactly what the name of business says.

They're doing a deeper dive into people's health and wellness and overall, just a holistic approach to everything. And they're looking at each person.

Um, as a person and a unique set of circumstances and they're doing, they've taken the time, doing the deep dive and the blood work to see what's the root cause.

A Holistic Root-Cause Approach

Why does this person have XYZ instead of just giving you the run of the mill answer and run with the meal recipe for how they are going to fix you. But I really think they going see that there's more to the puzzle of healing yourself, then putting harmful chemicals and drugs and ruining your liver, your immune system, just all those things.

The immunotherapy route and just basic everyday diet and nutrition and environmental safety and things, if you just do those simple things it can really change so much.

Yeah, I'm just a walking example of, and so is everybody that I meet that comes in here has a very unique story.

Health Improvements and Recommendation

And some people are much sicker than I am or was and they are still given the same attention, the level of care and the deep dive to figure out what's going to help them.

What's the root cause of what going on with them? And there's not a lot of places that do that. I would dare to say that Deeper healing is probably the only place in the country that takes this approach as seriously as they do.

And they're constantly adding things as the find it or educate or learn about it. My blood work is showing that, the before and the after. The proof's in putting as far as I'm concerned.

point of this journey, I feel like my immune system is stronger than it ever was, probably since I was born. And I, feel healthier than I've ever felt.

If I could tell anybody anything, it would be to take the step to come and see Dr. B and his staff, because it literally was life changing for me.
