Aging Skin and Foot Sensitivity

Skin changes are a concern that not many people think about with age. What happens to the skin of our face, hands, and even our feet is that it will start to thin.

As our skin gets thinner, especially on the foot, we are uniquely susceptible to experiencing irritation and blisters. Now at Orthofeet, they brought in innovative design into their toe box to minimize the risk of blisters and irritation to sensitive feet.

All of their uppers are soft, adaptable, and they will conform to the contours of your foot. The inside of the shoe is made of a fabric that is smooth and minimizes the risks of irritation.

Remember that as we age and are experiencing skin changes, we want to look for footwear that accommodates and understands those changes of the aging foot.
