Introduction to the Peptide Summit

Hello, I'm doctor Kent Holt. Tour for host of the Peptide summit. What? Really? Thank you for joining us. I've interviewed just under 40 experts across the country, in the world to give you practical knowledge from those on the cutting edge of peptide therapy.

I really think you'll be blown away with information that is almost too amazing to be true. But these experts, the incredible benefits of peptides every day in their practice, as we do, and are willing to share their knowledge and their secrets, I think just about everyone will find the summit incredibly informative, not only useful, but really invaluable.

Who the Summit Is For

And the information will improve your health in ways you really never felt possible. The summit experts will explain how they get you feeling and looking at your best.

I think everyone really needs to watch the summit. If you are a layperson who is just curious about peptides to stay healthy and you've heard about it from your friends or on the internet, you're a weekend warrior who's lost your edge.

You want to prevent or reverse aging, or you suffer from a wide range of chronic illnesses that you can find effective treatments, which is so common nowadays.

But the experts will explain how and what peptides can change your life. If you're a health care provider now, you will learn how the experts treat these conditions.

Their favorite peptide protocols, dosing clinical pearls.

Clinical Benefits and Practical Applications

And, you can be well on your way to truly revolutionizing your practice, which will undoubtedly become your go to therapy for the majority of our patients, as it's done for our center and so many doctors that I've trained in peptides, there is a ton of medical literature on peptides, and lectures are very important.

Of course. But the most common comment I get, when I lecture to physicians is that they can't believe the massive amount of medical literature demonstrating often the amazing effects of peptides.

They don't understand how it's possible that they haven't heard of these before, even though there's 40 years of studies, in Europe, they're they're used and approved in, in other countries, but we just didn't hear about them until recently here in the US.

The doctors then want more practical information on treating patients, which is what really this, this summit provides. Well, the lectures are a great to get to understand the basic science and research supporting the use of peptides.

Again, very important, but so often no one tells you how to safely and effectively implement the therapies. How do you start? Where do you get them? What do you do? Who don't you give these to?

Who's the best patient to give these to? So all these things will be answered, and the experts will tell you how they do it.

Research, History, and Real-World Use

After the seminar, you will be able to understand how to use the peptides available to help your patients really immediately after learning how the experts do it.

Whether you are optimizing patients health or treating the sickest, most complex patients, peptides are proven to be a game changer for your practice, as they have become for, for us and all the doctors that I've trained and have learned, about peptides, these experts have been using peptide therapies for years with conditions and situations.

They expected results, proper dosing regimens and protocols, and they will provide countless treatment pearls, that can be used by patients. If your patient and doctors to get the best results.

So whether you're new to peptides or you're highly experienced in the use of peptides, I'm sure you will find invaluable treatment, knowledge and pearls to help your patients.

How to Implement Peptide Therapy Safely

Especially if your health care provider, but also really how to help yourself when you've been to numerous physicians or even just trying to gain that edge back, you know, and in a extremely safe way?

Well, they I must disclose that, the medical director for Integrated Peptides, you know, having, used peptides for so long, we really wanted to bring peptides to patients at a much lower cost, much higher quality than was available, and not needing a prescription.

Integrated Peptides and Summit Closing

So, your peptides, it was, is dedicated to transforming the peptide industry, providing patients and health care practitioners safe and efficacious oral peptide supplements with unique delivery methods that are often, again, limited to high price options or people going online overseas and getting, you know, really toxic, in for research only, peptides.

So in summary, I want to thank you for watching this video and considering, signing up for the summit, I really think you'll find the information unique and just you'll really find that, you have new ways to basically either treat yourself and optimize your health or, if you're a health care practitioner, a new way to help patients that you thought you couldn't help before.

So, I'm very excited to do, put on the summit and just think that so many people can benefit from peptides and really trying to get the word out. And so I welcome you and, glad you can join us.
