Opening Hook: Shoes as a Toxic Relationship

If your shoes were a person, would you still be dating them? They look good in photos. But every time you go out together, you come home hurt.

Why Bad Shoes Hurt Your Feet

That's not style. It's a toxic relationship. Bad shoes have no backbone. They twist like cooked spaghetti and squeeze your toes. You deserve better.

When to Keep or Replace Them

Look, I'm not saying you'll never see the bad pair again. A wedding? A gala? Fine, take a photo but don't move back in with them. Give your feet time to recover, so do the twist test, check the toe box.

Find Stable Shoes at We Treat Feet

If your shoes act like a bad partner, it's time break up. Start dating for stability. Come see us at We Treat Feet. I'll help you find a pair your feed actually want to wake up to.