Why We Couldn't Publish This Episode On YouTube Transcript

(Transcripts are generated by AI and may contain errors)

Episode Update and Topic Overview

Hey everyone, James here. I just want to record a quick message about this week's episode of Everyday Ancestral. We had a great conversation about viruses, contagion, germ theory, medical testing, and personal responsibility for health.

It's truly one of the most thought provoking and controversial conversations we've had on the show.

Why the Full Interview Won't Be on YouTube

After reviewing the episode, we've decided to not publish the full interview on YouTube. Some of you may remember we previously had an episode removed or restricted due to the topics being discussed.

Now given the nature of this conversation, We don't want to risk publishing the episodes here only for it to become unavailable later. The goal of Everyday Ancestral has always been about curiosity, not blind acceptance, no blind rejection, just curiosity.

Where to Listen and Show Philosophy

If you'd like to hear the full conversation with Dr. Mark Bailey and Autumn McLeese, you can find it right now on Spotify, Apple Podcasts, and our website using the links below.

We're also expanding it on to Rumble so that we have another home for conversations that may not always fit comfortably with the limitations of mainstream platforms.

Thank you for supporting the show. Thank for you supporting Open Discussion. Stay curious, live well, and keep it ancestral.